Questions for Examining History without Moral Judgement

1. How do I feel about this issue or these people from the past?
2. What evidence shows that people of the time had different attitudes or values than today?
3. What social, political, or economic conditions might explain people's attitudes at that time?
4. What is the most convincing argument about that historical event or issue?
5. Which part of the argument from the past fails to convince me today?
6. What does the historical event teach me about issues today?
